College Park, Oct. 19.—Three excellent training flights were made at dawn yesterday by Wilbur Wright and his two army aviation students. The weather conditions were ideal and the aeroplane behaved well. Lieutenant Humphreys accompanied Mr. Wright on two of the flights and Lieutenant Lalm was the passenger on the other trip. It was not so cold at the army aviation field yesterday morning and the aviators displayed more enthusiasm than they had during the past few days.

MEAT WILL BE NO CHEAPER

Packers Discuss Situation at Chicago

YEAR NOT SATISFACTORY

Very High Price Paid for Stock Foodstuff—The Packers Indorse the Meat Inspection Laws.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—No hope of cheaper meat is held out by the packers according to the report of the executive committee of the American Meat Packers' association which was presented to the third annual convention of the association at the Hotel LaSalle yesterday. At the same time a letter from Secretary Wilson was read to the convention thanking the packers for the assistance they had given the department of agriculture in the execution of the meat inspection law and declaring that the outside world was satisfied with American meats. Secretary Wilson's letter follows:

"I regret that it will not be possible for me to be present at your meeting in Chicago and consider the execution of the meat inspection law. We have inspectors now in over 800 packing houses, which will give an idea of the comprehensiveness of our work. With few exceptions we have cordial co-operation from the packers in the rigid execution of the law.

"I am convinced that the outside world receiving our meats is satisfied with regard to their purity and cleanliness, and I know from correspondence within the United States that there is very little fault found with the meats that enter into interstate commerce. I might remark that in the execution of the meat law and of the pure food law we have very little friction. There is difference of opinion with regard to a few things only, and entire harmony with regard to the great bulk of meats and foods put upon the American market.

"We are having trouble with imports from foreign countries where people preparing goods for shipment to the United States evidently do not have a title of the supervision that is exercised in the United States.

"I will have some of our prominent officials attend the meeting of your association.

"Wishing you success in the line of your work and a pleasant time, I remain,

"James Wilson, Secretary."

In considering the high cost of meat the executive committee said: "The past fiscal year has been a very unsatisfactory one to the meat packers of the country. The prices of livestock, our raw material, have been abnormally high, and the products have had to be sold at comparatively low figures. The prices of livestock, foodstuffs have been extremely high throughout the year, and this has resulted in a consequently increased cost of production to the feeders and raisers. It naturally follows that where our raw material is high priced that the products must go up in proportion, and we think it is our duty to the public to explain this situation. There seems to be but little prospect at this time of a decrease in the cost of livestock, which we will be compelled to buy, and, if the prices of our raw material continue upon a high plane, it will, therefore, be necessary for us to maintain a proportionate price upon our products."

The committee referred to the tariff law, declaring that the schedules while placing many packing house products on the free list would not materially affect the business. The main importance of the law to the packers being found in the maximum and minimum provision, the committee declaring:

"That if it is properly applied the restrictive regulations and unreasonable tariffs of some of the larger countries of the world will have to be so modified as to permit the entry of American meat food products. The subject will be cared for by the association with a view to opening foreign markets that are now closed to us, and should it be successful there will be an increased demand for American packinghouse products."

In conclusion the committee says: "We give our unqualified approval to the meat inspection and pure food laws. We believe these laws have come to stay; that they are in line with the progressiveness of the age and are calculated to elevate our commercial standard, to give an added moral tone to business, to promote honesty and fair dealing and to greatly conserve the public welfare."

The committee to confer with government officials devoted considerable space to a discussion of the eradication of disease in animals, declaring that the matter had been taken up at length with the department of agriculture. The report says:

"Your committee renewed its suggestion that disease in animals cannot be successfully eradicated until its source is known, and that to discover this source some form of identification of a diseased animal should be devised and be put into operation by the department. The suggestion was further made that the source of disease in each case could be traced back and the cause of it eliminated from each starting point.

"The diseases in question are preventable and eradicable, but it will be necessary for the federal government to take vigorous action in order to accomplish the purpose."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE AS DEMONSTRABLE BELIEF

which maketh alive—and that is what Christian Science is—comes only as the result of continuous study of the Bible with the aid of the Christian Science text-book, which is what its title indicates, a "Key to the Scriptures."

Nearly all denominations have their "Bible helps," prepared for the use of the lay members by those presumed to have knowledge of the spiritual teaching contained in the Scriptures. "Science and Health" is the "Bible help" of the Christian Scientists; it is the book with which the Bible is studied, and it has sent the veil of mystery surrounding the letter of the Word from top to bottom, revealing the spiritual import of the Scriptures, disclosing to us the "Holy of holies," wherein God is revealed to us as no longer an unknown God, no longer a God to be ignorantly worshipped, but a God who is Love—a God who never turns from His children, a Father more tender, more considerate, more compassionate, more loving than human consciousness can conceive.

Christ Acknowledge in Christian Science. It is frequently alleged that Christian Science denies God and the Christ; in refutation of this statement, I desire to say that God is referred to over twelve hundred times and Jesus the Christ over eight hundred times in the Christian Science text-book, an average of over three times to every page thereof, and every reference to either God or Christ brings out a more exalted thought than the world has heretofore known. If one will procure a copy of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," written by Mrs. Eddy, and read her definition of God (p. 587) and of Christ (p. 588), he will never question the reverence accorded them in the teachings of Christian Science.

God and Man.

Because Christian Scientists declare that the real man is one with God, this statement has been used as a foundation for the claim that Christian Science is but a restatement of Oriental philosophies, wherein it is taught that man reaches the highest state of existence when he forgets that he has ever lived and is absorbed into Deity. The teachings of Christian Science are absolutely opposed to such an idea. They lead us to think of man as created in the image and likeness of God, and as inseparable from Him, but inseparable from Him; and so it is with man, God's idea, His image and likeness! He is inseparable from God, the Mind, the Creator which conceived him, but in no sense a component part of God. In no sense is his individuality ever lost, for it is as eternal as the Mind that created him.

Universal Belief Cannot Alter Facts.

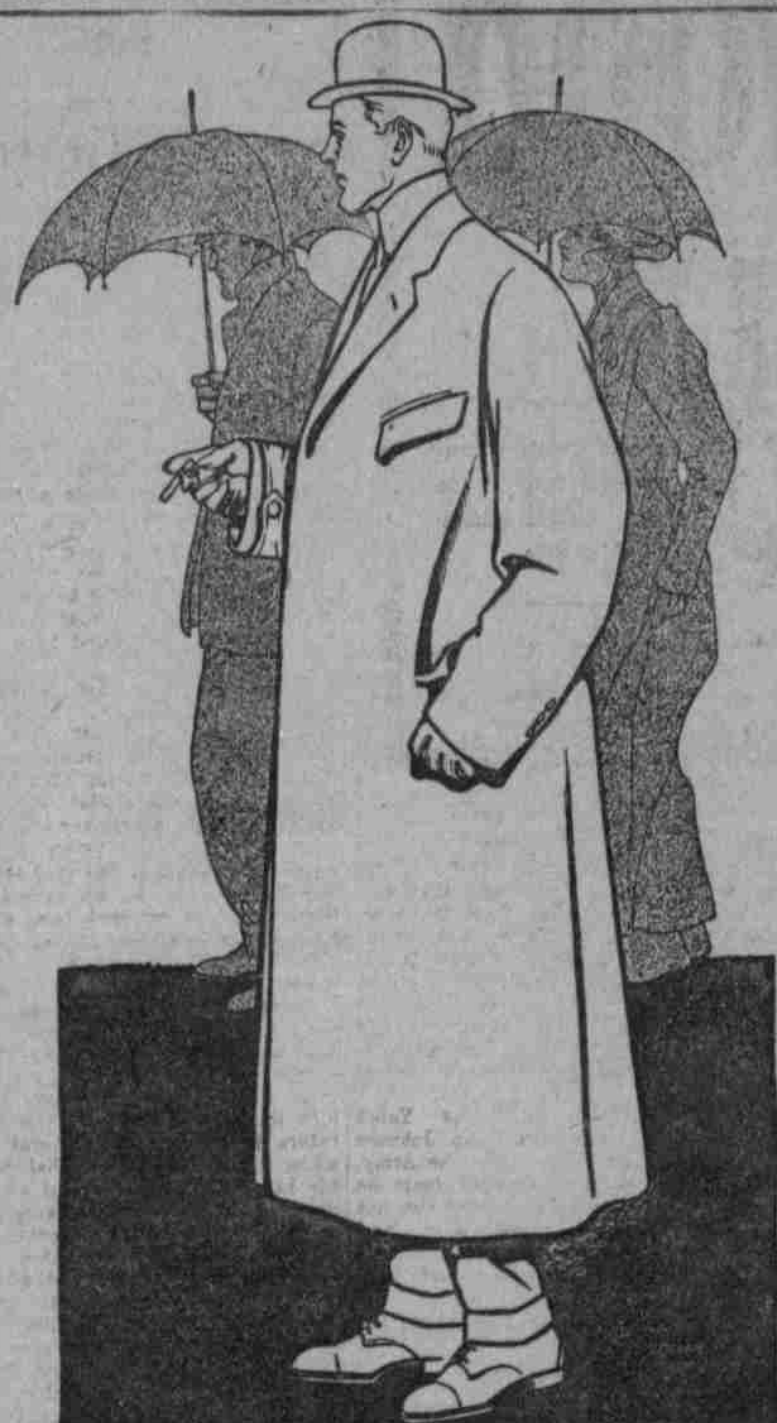

For ages those who have deemed themselves wise in religious matters have held the world in the grip of the belief that God is either directly or indirectly responsible for sin, disease, and death; and until we break that false belief, until we turn away from it as the prophet Ezekiel implored the Israelites to do when he said, "Turn ye, turn ye from your evil way; for only by it shall continue to sin, we shall continue to be sick, and continue to die. God, as the supposed creator of good and evil, of life and death, sin and disease, is not the God of the Christian Scientists, nor is He the God of the inspired Scriptures, which teach that He is the same yesterday, to-day, and forever, without variableness or shadow of turning. Letters C. S. stand not only for Christian Science, but for common sense as well, and it is common sense, because it is my sense and your sense; it is a sense that belongs to all of us; and Christian Scientists have nothing that is not yours; they are simply putting to use what non-Christian Scientists are letting lie dormant in their thought.

Life and Death Opposites.

If God is changeless, how could He give life and at the same time give death? When life was existent what would become of death, and when death was existent what would become of life? If God created them, they must both be as eternal as their creator. How can they both exist eternally when one manifests the absence of the other as certainly as light annihilates darkness? The Bible tells us that death is the wages of sin. Do we believe it? The Bible does not say that in one case death is the wage of sin and that in another case it is the wage of goodness. It makes the unqualified statement that "the wages of sin is death." If God created death, He must have created sin. We cannot escape this conclusion by saying that He only permits sin; for to permit it He must know it, and how can He know it when the Scriptures tell us that God is of purer eyes than to behold evil and cannot look upon iniquity. If He created death and death is the wage of sin, then it logically follows that God creates sin; and as everything He created is good, it further follows logically that sin is not evil but is good, an argument that cannot for an instant be sustained; and our hearts are filled with joy when we know, as Christian Science teaches us, that God has no consciousness of sin.

Life is creative and death destructive, so that God, the primal and only creator, must be Life and not death, and there, fore death, measured by the standard of perfection which is God, is not real but is the suppositional absence of or belief in the negation of life. To what then can the belief in sin and death pertain save to mortal consciousness? This mortal consciousness is to be put off with the old man and his deeds, and as it is put off and is superseded by immortal consciousness, man will be found in the divine image, knowing no sin and death, but forever manifesting eternal life, being perfect even as his "Father which is in heaven is perfect."

There is a universal belief about death that it is either the gateway to heaven or the entrance to hell. This belief would logically lead us to destroy the immortal images in order to insure its gaining the kingdom, and the action of the natives of India in casting their babies into the river Ganges would be based on sound logic and good reason! How manifest is the fallacy of the belief that death is ever a friend!

Death to Be Overcome.

Death is an enemy. Christ Jesus proved its untruth, and overcame it in accordance with the law of God, thus indicating ultimate freedom from death for all mankind. It is this statement, however, that is the basis of our belief in the kingdom, and the action of the natives of India in casting their babies into the river Ganges would be based on sound logic and good reason! How manifest is the fallacy of the belief that death is ever a friend!

We, as Christian Scientists, accept them without modification or qualification, because they are so absolutely in accord with what our Master did and said. True, Christian Scientists have not yet reached the point where they have overcome the universal belief in death, nor have they yet reached the point where they heal every case that is brought to them, but like the prodigal son of the Bible story, they have started on their journey back to their Father's house. They are weary of living in a country far away from God; they are weary of feeding on the husks of words which, no matter how beautiful they may be, fail to bring any proof of their truth. When the infallible Principle of Christian Science is fully followed, we shall reach the Father's house, solve all life's problems, and realize in full the meaning of the angelic chorus, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

The Discoverer of Christian Science.

The revelation of Christian Science came to Mrs. Eddy as the result of a lifetime spent in continuous search and desire for the spirit of the Word and the things of God. As a religious reformer she occupies a position unique in the history of the world—unswerving in her trust in the goodness of God, unquestioning in her obedience to His commands. This calls on her for such meekness, humility, and self-sacrifice, that she never could live such a life were it not for the protecting care of a real, livable, demonstrable religion, wherein she finds immunity from the sufferings of those who turn away from the Christ-concept of God.

Ever since 1860 Mrs. Eddy's life has been devoted to the work of bringing to mankind this revelation of the way of salvation. She has done this with such singleness of purpose, that mankind is awakening to the recognition of the Word which Jesus portrayed. Christian Scientists do not worship Mrs. Eddy, nor do they in any sense of the word deify her in their thought. The whole teaching of Christian Science leads us to put self under foot; to have no way and no will save God's way and God's will; and Mrs. Eddy asks the world, each one of us, to follow her only so far as she follows Christ. In her following of Christ she has been the instrument whereby the feet of hundreds of thousands have been planted upon the rock of the proved truth of God's promises, and against that rock, in the words of the Master, "the gates of hell shall not prevail." We do love our leader, and we give her the allegiance and devotion to which her tireless labor in mankind's behalf is entitled.

As a boy and young man I heard continually that God was responsible for all things; that suffering and sickness and misery and wretchedness were in some way associated with His great plan of salvation, and in my hours of agony and helplessness I was so overwhelmed with fear of God that I reached a point where I had no belief in Him, and my whole desire was to get away from Him if it were possible, to find something that would shield me from the sickness and misery that I was continually called upon to suffer. I had no God, I had nothing to trust, nothing to love, nothing to look forward to, and I had come to feel that I did not care to hear about God, and church-going had become a burden to me.

Then Christian Science came, with the assurance that God is Love; that He has nothing to do with evil; and this teaching took away my disease and my suffering, and took with it my fear, my dread of God. Christian Science came to me, and gave me God, and when I told you this as my experience, I am telling you the experience of countless thousands all over the globe. Is it any wonder that we love the one who has been so selfless and so faithful in her endeavor that through it God has come to us, that salvation has been brought within our apprehension? We are willingly, joyfully obedient to her every teaching, because it is through her continued labors for over forty years that the mystery of the way of salvation has been removed and the glory of God again been made apparent to mankind.

Christian Science is the demonstration of that great, tender, compassionate love which Jesus Christ manifested to the world, not only in his word, but in his demonstrations of power. Christian Science is the revelation to mankind to-day that only as we live the religion of love, making it a demonstration that of doing unto others as we would be done by, are we showing any conception of that religion, pure and undiluted, which the Bible commands us to demonstrate. Love brings no evil; Love brings no suffering to man; and the understanding of Love, as it is demonstrated in Christian Science, enables a man to reach out to his brother with a tenderness, a sweetness, a sense of consideration which the world, otherwise, knows not of.

Christian Science is the manifestation of that love which respects no person, that knows no relationship save the universal brotherhood, and which brings to mankind the satisfying consciousness that God is Love. In this knowledge of demonstrable religion, Christian Scientists have their satisfaction, their joy, a sense of harmony that can never be disturbed, a consciousness that Love includes all its omniscience, and leads us, weary and heavy laden, to Calvary, to the cross, where we are freed from our burden in fulfillment of the promise of Him whose word never faileth. Here we find relief from our pain, escape from our sorrow and weariness, spiritual regeneration, emergence from self, from the world, the flesh and the devil, into that everlasting peace which God giveth His beloved children, and toward which Mrs. Eddy, God's messenger to this age, is leading us.

We ask you to investigate, not Christian Scientists, but Christian Science, and see how absolutely it reveals the Godly standard wherein what blesses all. Every promise shall be fulfilled, and the grand work of Christ, as exemplified in Christian Science, be universally accepted. Then shall His will be done in earth as it is in heaven; then shall we reach that His "is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory forever"; see the full fruition of Love, have no other God than "our Father which art in heaven" who is everlasting Life, Truth and Love.
